

Abstract

The thesis „The Developement of the Electoral System in Estonia and it's Influence on the Party System between the Years 1990 and 2007“ deals, after the first chapter about the theoretical attitudes to the influence of the electoral systems on the party systems, with the, firstly historical background of this interwar, independent, and democratic baltic state. The following chapters drala with the changes on the electoral rules in Estonia since 1990 and first of all about the influence of these changes on the stability of a party system and government.